Clara and Robert Schumann

Piano trios in G minor, op. 17 & D minor (op. 63)

The Atlantis Trio
Penelope Crawford
Jaap Schröder
Enid Sutherland

Clara Schumann completed her Piano Trio in G minor, Op. 17 in September, 1846. In 1847, just as it was being published, her husband, Robert completed and had performed his first Piano Trio in D minor, Op. 63, a work of startling originality and power that set new standards of trio writing and undermined Clara's confidence in her own work. In fact, the two trios are complementary masterpieces, linked forever by the mutual love of their respective composers. The Atlantis Trio performs both works with its usual mastery.

Features:

- Two great trios of the early Romantic period by husband and wife, Clara and Robert Schumann, indissolubly linked together since their composition
- Exceptional performances on period instruments by the celebrated Atlantis Trio, one of the world's leading specialist ensembles in Romantic music on period instruments.
- Booklet notes by leading Schumann scholar, John Daverio (1954-2003). This release is offered in his memory.
- Exceptional recorded sound by Joel Gordon, one of the USA's leading engineers.
